DEATH OF TWO AGED PERSONS

One Was Seventy-Eight, the Other Almost Ninety-Seven.

PIONEER WOMAN DEAD.

On Sunday last Mrs. Nancy Powell, probably the oldest woman on the Big Sandy river, died at the home of a daughter, Mrs. James Finney, near Burnsville, Boyd county. She was buried in the Kavanagh graveyard on the following Tuesday. If Mrs. Powell had lived until October next she would have been 97 years old. Death was due to the infirmity of old age. For many years Mrs. Powell's home was a noted stopping place for travelers up and down the Sandy Valley before the coming of the old Chattahoochee railroad. In those days it usually required the greater part of the day to travel the distance between Louisa and Catlettsburg, a journey now made in about an hour and it was usual to stop at "the widow Powell's" for dinner, and a good one it was. You got the fat of the land in abundance, cooked in the good old way, for 25 cents, and if one didn't have the quarter, why, you got the dinner, anyway. Peace to her ashes.

DEATH OF WELL KNOWN CITIZEN

Mr. W. D. O'Neal, Sr., a well known and respected citizen of this county, died on Monday last at his home near Burnsville, after a lingering illness. He was buried Tuesday in the graveyard not far from the Burnsville church, with funeral services conducted by Revs. H. B. Hewlett and Hicks. A very large number of people attended the funeral. The deceased was 78 years old.

Mr. O'Neal, who was the father of W. D. O'Neal, of this city, was an excellent man, citizen and neighbor. He was a member of the church, quiet, sober and industrious. A more extended notice will be published later.

DIED IN GREENUP.

On Saturday last Mrs. James Young, formerly of this county, died after an illness of only a few hours. She seemed to be in her usual good health and was carrying a churn of milk to the dairy, when she became sick and died in about ten hours. She was about fifty years old and leaves a husband and two children. She was a good woman, much liked and respected by her neighbors. Mrs. Young was a daughter of "Blosser" James Carter, a well known citizen of Lawrence county.

DEATH OF AN INFANT.

Born in Springfield, O., on July 23rd, to Mr. and Mrs. A. C. McClure, formerly of this city, a daughter, The child lived only a few hours. The body was brought to Louisa and interred in Pine Hill cemetery. For some time Mrs. McClure was dangerously ill but is now much improved. Her sister, Mrs. Carrie Snyder Burns, who had been with her several days, has returned home, but her mother, Mrs. T. J. Snyder, remains with her daughter.

DIED IN COVINGTON.

The wife of the Rev. William Childers died in Covington, Ky., last Tuesday, July 21, and was buried in that city on Thursday, the 23rd, aged about 72 years. Her maiden name was Howes and she was related to Mrs. J. L. Carey and Mrs. C. L. Miller, of this city. Mr. Childers was at one time pastor of the M. E. Church, this city.

STOLEN BRASS RECOVERED.

On Friday last Marshal Ross received nearly a hundred pounds of valuable brass castings which had been stolen from cars in the C. & O. yard at Paintsville Thursday. The theft was discovered by the train men at Paintsville and the Marshal was advised to be on the look out for the thieves, who were three in number, also robbed some of the men of a freight train of about thirty dollars. They were seen to throw something off a car near Lick creek, probably intending to get it later, but Marshal Ross heard of their actions and instituted a search with successful results. The postoffice and store at Lockwood were broken into and robbed on Friday, presumably by the same men.

BODY FOUND IN RIVER.

The body of Louis E. Marting, one of Ironton's most prominent and highly respected business men, was found Sunday morning in the Ohio river on the Ohio side opposite Seventeenth-st. The finding of the body cleared up the mystery of what had become of Mr. Marting, who had been away from home since Friday morning, but whose disappearance caused no alarm until Saturday, when it was learned that he had not been to the flouring mill for which he left home Friday morning, and that his automobile had been found at the Narrows above Coal Grove, in the opposite direction from Wheelersburg.

Several persons who saw Gov. McCreary here last week expressed surprise at his robust appearance. One man who had heard him described by a partisan of one of the other candidates said he expected to see an old man, bent in form, thin and emaciated, grey-haired, supporting himself on a cane. But he saw neither. Instead of that he saw a strong man of fine face and full voice; straight as an Indian, weight over 200, no cane, bright eyes, alert mind, vigorous body, and apparently about 60 to 65 years of age.

MAIDEN SPEECH FOR SECTION HE KNOWS.

Washington, July 26.—When the multiplicity of duties which fall to the lot of a United States Senator is taken into consideration the occasion for the maiden speech of Senator Johnson N. Camden, of Kentucky, on the floor furnished an interesting coincidence. This occasion was provided in connection with the making of a favorable report by committee on commerce on the bill authorizing the fiscal court of Pike-co., Ky., to construct a bridge across Tug Fork of the Big Sandy river, at or near Williamson, W. Va.

As is the custom, the chairman of the committee directed the attention of the Senator from Kentucky, Mr. Camden, to the report. Senator Burton, of Ohio, who is fighting all river and harbor appropriations; Senator Clark, of Wyoming, and others wanted to know the whys and the wherefores of this proposition.

Gets Instant Approval. Senator Camden promptly furnished this information and in such a satisfactory manner that the bill was promptly ordered to a third reading, read the third time and passed.

The coincidence afforded, however, by this action was in the fact that Senator Camden's first appearance on the floor was in connection with the successful support of a proposition which means much to the very section of the country for which he has done so much, the mountain region of Kentucky and West Virginia.

The building of this bridge will not only mean great convenience to the people of a wide and rapidly growing section, but it will facilitate the commercial transactions of that section.

GOV. MCCREARY AT PIKEVILLE.

One of the largest crowds that has greeted any speaker during the Senatorial campaign at this place assembled at the court house last Friday, at 12:30 to hear Governor McCreary present his claims to the people of Pike county in his aspirations for the position of U. S. Senator.

The Governor proved to be a pleasing and entertaining speaker, and it is needless to say made a most favorable impression with our people, irrespective of political views. It is evident that he has a substantial following in Pike county, and his visit to Pikeville will greatly strengthen his support in this locality.—Pike County News.

BIG SAVING ON SCHOOL BOOKS

Ruling Which Makes All Old Books Available—Law Saves Money.

Frankfort, Ky., July 25.—Thousands of dollars will be saved parents of school children by a ruling made today by Barksdale Hamlett, Superintendent of Public Instruction, regarding the exchange of schoolbooks under the State textbook adoption. Hamlett holds that under the act of 1914 all publishers will be required to take up and exchange books in any condition provided they are of the same grade. The ruling was made to correct an impression that has gone out that such books offered in exchange would have to be in good condition. On this subject the law says:

"Said dealers shall exchange new books for old ones of the same grade, displaced by said adoption, at the exchange price herein provided for, during the first year of the life of each and every contract made under the provisions of this act. All bids and proposals shall set out clearly and specifically an exchange price at which such book or books shall be furnished to pupils and patrons who may have old books of the same subject, and which may be exchanged for new books, and the exchange price shall in all cases be subject to the terms of the contract made between the State and any publisher bidding."

Hamlett's interpretation of the law is that the "good condition" clause applies only to such books as are held by dealers on their shelves, which, of course, must be taken up by the contractors at the original net price. Regarding this the law says:

"Such new books as are held in Kentucky now, or at any future adoption, by purchase by dealers, and in good condition, shall be taken in exchange at the original net price by successful bidders from such dealers as hold in stock such books."

OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS.

On Tuesday last Miss Maggie Blankenship, who lives on Queen's creek, about six miles from Ft. Gay, was brought to Riverview hospital suffering with appendicitis. An operation was found to be necessary, and it was done by Drs. York and Bromley. The patient is doing very well.

PLEASANT PICNIC PARTY.

On Tuesday morning a large number of Huntington young people of both sexes came up on the Ashland train, and after being joined by several Louisians, including Mrs. A. L. Burton's Sunday School class, went to Fountain Park for a picnic. A most enjoyable day was passed. The company and the eatables were of the best and a general good time was had by all. The crowd was chaperoned by the Rev. J. W. Crites and wife. It was their first visit since they left this city after a two years' residence, and their friends were glad to see them.

The Huntington visitors were Rev. J. W. Crites and wife, Mrs. W. J. Stevenson, Misses Lola Stevenson, Beulah Brown, Daisy Blankenship, Pansy Perry, Emaline Oaks, Addie Crites, Ruth Crites, Ufa Crites, Miss Melahil, Ruth Kirk, Mora Allen Crites, Messrs. Auxier Mathew, Linsay Lapole, Garland Bowen, John Davis.

They returned home in the afternoon.

Mrs. H. C. Sullivan's class also joined the picnic crowd.

ROLF GRAY.

Mr. A. B. Rolf, of this city, and Miss Carrie Gray, of Hitchens, Ky., were married in Richmond last Tuesday afternoon by the Rev. W. J. Young, of the Methodist Church. Mr. Rolf is a well known business man of this city, and Miss Gray one of Kentucky's accomplished daughters. After a short bridal trip they will make their home here.

The bride mentioned in the foregoing is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gray, formerly of Louisa. The item is taken from the Virginia Gazette, published at Williamsburg, that State. L. B. Ferguson, a former Louisian, is its business manager.

ASK FOR SCHOOL FUNDS.

Washington, July 23.—Miss Newman and Miss De Long, teachers in the training school at Hindman, arrived here today to obtain funds for that institution. They called on Senator Camden and Representative Slemo, of Virginia, both of whom are interested in the work the young women are doing to educate the children in the mountainous district of Eastern Kentucky. Miss Newman and Miss De Long explained to friends here that unless they raised $4,500 within the next few weeks a part of the school property at Hindman will be forfeited. They are confident that they will obtain sufficient funds here to enable the school to continue its work without any financial handicap.

BROUGHT GREAT RELIEF.

The storm which passed over Louisa and vicinity last Sunday afternoon brought great relief from heat and dust. The rain fell in torrents for awhile and then settled into a steady downpour which lasted several hours. Much good was done to growing crops and to pastures. Thunder and lightning were frequent and severe, but the NEWS has heard of no casualties. Lightning entered the office of the local freight depot and burned the telegraph and phone instruments. It being Sunday probably prevented severe, if not fatal, shocks to some of the office force.

BROKE A LEG.

It will be news to the friends of Dr. Claude Vaughan, who formerly resided near this city, to hear that about two weeks ago he sustained a fractured leg and a dislocated ankle. The doctor, who practices medicine at Mannington, W. Va., while in a buggy on his way to visit a patient, slipped his horse with the lines. The animal reared up by "kicking up behind" and rearing up he "kicked old Joe" Dr. Vaughan jumped out to avoid the horse's heels and in so doing he received the injuries mentioned. His friends will be glad to learn that he is doing well.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNICS.

The Baptist Sunday School went to Walbridge yesterday to enjoy a picnic which was arranged by the officers and teachers.

Also, the same day, two classes of the M. E. Church South Sunday School picnicked near town. Mrs. Wallace's class spent the afternoon on the attractive lawn at M. G. Berry's, and Mrs. J. L. Carey's class went up on Pine Hill.

APPRECIATE THEIR KINDNESS.

The surviving members of Mr. O'Neal's family desire to express through the medium of the NEWS their appreciation of the great kindness manifested by many friends during the sickness and last hours of their aged relative. Their helpful sympathy will always be remembered.

While cranking an automobile last Saturday Earl Peters let go of the crank, which struck him on his right arm, fracturing it at the wrist. Dr. Ira Wellman set the broken limb.

AN UNPREJUDICED STATEMENT OF FACTS

Importance of Selection in Senatorial Race Saturday of this Week.

The following is from the Louisville Times:

When James B. McCreary closes his campaign for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator he will have nothing to regret. He has made a vigorous fight, but a fair one. He has not indulged in bitter personal attacks on his opponents. He has shown them every consideration. Gov. McCreary has comforted himself with the dignity that befits his position as the Chief Executive of the State. The result is that all factions feel kindly toward him, and the public generally recognizes that under his leadership all discordant elements can be brought together.

The Republicans, who are engaged in a sham fight with the Progressives, are delighted with the bickering of candidates who seem to care more to air their private grievances than to work for party success. They attend their meetings and do everything to encourage a breach in the Democratic ranks.

On the other hand, they know that under Gov. McCreary's leadership Democratic success is certain. When he is nominated there will be no apologies to make, no harsh words to recall, no sores to be healed. He will have a united Democracy at his back.

It is a characteristic of Gov. McCreary to deal fairly with his fellowmen. Throughout his long public career he has never forgotten his friends, with the result that he has fewer enemies in Kentucky than any other man now offering for the senatorship.

A nomination for United States Senator is of small value unless it carries with it the support of Democrats of all factions. Kentucky wants a party victory, not a personal victory.

When the campaign is ended the people will understand that Gov. McCreary is the only candidate who can unite all the forces of Democracy against a Republican enemy that is rapidly getting together.

It will be remembered that in the last campaign for President in Kentucky the Republican vote and Progressive vote nearly equaled the votes cast for Woodrow Wilson. With Kentucky as a close State in a national fight, what must it be in a State fight, where much bad feeling has been engendered by rival candidates for United States Senator? Gov. McCreary does not want to build his success on the faults and demerits of other men, but thoughtful people everywhere are agreed that he is the only man who, at the head of the Democratic ticket, can demand and receive the vote of every Democrat in the State.

There is no talk of knifing McCreary there are no implacable enemies waiting to waylay and destroy him when he becomes the Democratic nominee.

Why was he chosen by all factions of the party to be the nominee for Governor after he had retired from public life? For the simple reason that he alone would bring order out of chaos and make bitter political enemies strike hands together for a grand Democratic victory. His nomination was followed by his election by over 31,000 majority over the strongest Republican that had been nominated in years. The people rallied to Gov. McCreary because they had proof of his ability and evidence of his judgment and integrity. They knew that in all the years he had served in the Senate, in Congress and as Governor there had never been a stain upon his private or his public record.

The Democratic party has very few votes to spare in the United States Senate. One vote more or less may control that body in the November election. It would be a great mistake to take any chances in Kentucky and nominate a man who could not by any possibility be elected and permit a Republican to succeed to the seat of the late Senator Bradley.

Gov. McCreary is a strong advocate of the policies of President Wilson. He will not go to Washington as a raw recruit, but as a soldier who had seen service and has won laurels, and who is acquainted with the big problem that confronts the Government in national and international affairs. He is as well known in the capital as he is in Kentucky.

In the six years that he served in the Senate he took high rank among his fellows, and when again chosen to represent Kentucky he will find a warm welcome awaiting him.

Unquestionably Gov. McCreary can be elected if nominated. The independent element in the State will rally to his support, and with him as the standard bearer there is no possibility of defeat.

This is no time for experiments. It is no time to take chances. The Democracy owes nothing to any individual. Personal ambition should be set aside in a patriotic endeavor to aid the party. President Wilson needs another Democratic Senator from Kentucky. The success of his administration may depend upon the choice the Democrats of this State make on August 1.

Do not imperil the national cause by naming a candidate who may not win in November. Gov. McCreary can win beyond a shadow of a doubt. Nominate him and victory is assured.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Rice went to Catlettsburg Thursday. Mrs. Rice will probably not return to Louisa, but the unfailing John M. will be here to vote Saturday.

JAILERS WIFE ATTACKED BY NEGRO BREAKING JAIL

Campton, Ky., July 25.—Jno. Banks, negro, made a sensational escape from the jail here this noon and was captured several hours later after he had been fired upon three times by the posse in pursuit.

In the absence of G. W. Salley, jailer, his wife went in the jail to-day at noon to feed the prisoners. Banks, who was hiding behind a door, jumped on Mrs. Salley, threw her to the floor and made his escape. It was several minutes before the posse to take up the chase was organized and he had obtained quite a start.

The negro was traced to the edge of town. When the posse first caught sight of him he refused to stop his fight but several shots were fired and made him change his mind. He was placed in the jail again.

REV. ROSCOE MURRAY.

Rev. Roscoe Murray, for the past year pastor of the Washington avenue Baptist church, whose resignation was recently announced, is to enter the evangelistic field after his work here ends the first of August. He will preach his farewell sermon to the Washington Avenue congregation on the evening of Sunday, August 2. He will thereafter be a free agent and will conduct denominational revivals. He has engagements for a year ahead with dates in West Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky.

Nothing definite is known as to who will succeed him in the Washington Avenue pastorate. A minister from Richmond, Va., has been invited to occupy the pulpit on the second Sunday in August but as yet he has not responded.

The church under the pastorate of Mr. Murray has enjoyed a rapid growth and the congregation is one of the most enthusiastic in the city.—Herald Dispatch.

C. & O. BRIDGE ACROSS THE OHIO

Big Structure to be Started Right Away Near Portsmouth.

The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. has decided to build its proposed bridge over the Ohio River about eight miles east of Portsmouth, O., and a short distance above the mouth of the Little Scioto River. The railroad follows the south bank of the Ohio, which makes a bend to the northward at this point, so that the crossing of the stream will be near the apex of an acute angle and in the general direction of the line which will be built from there to a point near Columbus, O., about 25 miles. The bridge will consist of two cantilever spans, each 750 feet long, and 24 plate girder spans, each 80 feet long, making its total length 3420 feet. It is estimated that the cost will be about $2,000,000.

The new railroad, it is reported, will follow the Little Scioto River and near Stockdale will cross to the Scioto River near Waverly, going over the latter stream north of Chillicothe. Connection with the Hooking Valley Railway will be at Valley Crossing, southeast of Columbus. All the new construction will be under the direct supervision of M. J. Caples, vice-president of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, who has established headquarters at Columbus.

IN MEMORY.

On last Wednesday morning the dark banner of death waned over the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Derfield and took away from them their darling little boy Alden. He was born February 11, 1914, aged 5 months, 4 days. His stay was short in this world but sweet it was as only a sunbeam taken to brighten their home.

Dear parents, we know you miss little Alden but buds open fairer in paradise and God reached a loving hand and took little Alden to fill a vacancy around the throne of God. You will never see his smiling face and hear his voice again on earth, but keep prepared, dear parents, to meet little Alden on the other shore, somewhere on the shores of eternity is your darling, waiting your coming. We know you loved him but Jesus loved him dearer and took him to live with him.

A father, mother, five brothers and one sister are left to mourn the loss of a loving brother. The remains were laid to rest in the Allen cemetery. The pall bearers were Misses Ollie and Anna Bruce, Carrie Adkins and Ollie Diamond.

We extend to the family all the sympathy and extend out the arm of charity in every way that will comfort the bereaved family in their humble home without Alden. A KENTUCKIAN.

is the canal of life but it becomes a power if clogged up. All life consists of building up and tearing down and just in the same manner that the blood carries to the various parts of the body the food that the cells need for building up, so it is compelled to carry away the waste material that's torn down. These waste materials are poisonous and destroy us unless the liver and kidneys are stimulated into refreshed and vigorous life.

The Serbian Government has refused to comply with Austria's demands, the most humiliating, it is stated, ever asked of an independent nation, which action was closely followed by the breaking off of diplomatic relations last night. War is regarded by the public as a certainty. The action of Austria-Hungary created the greatest enthusiasm in Berlin, the tumult being led by bands playing German and Austrian airs. Emperor William is on his way to Berlin. The mobilization of the Russian army will proceed immediately. The czar has fully approved the decision of his Ministers to this effect.

Why Girls Like to be Pretty.

In the August Woman's Home Companion appears a friendly talk to girls who love beauty. The author explains, as follows, why as a girl she wanted to be beautiful and the reason that is generally at the bottom of a desire for beauty:

"I wanted the power which already, without reasoning about it, I knew beauty to possess."

"And that is, I am sure, at the bottom of every girl's wish for beauty, though she herself may not know it. And all this chit-chat talk about vanity is very chit-chat indeed beside this real reason. We want beauty because it is a power, and—let all the mothers and older people shake their heads at me if they like—it is right and normal and healthy for a girl to want power, and I would not give a snap of my finger for the girl who did not want it."

"We all have, as Stevenson says, a great thirst for consideration."

WHY GIRLS SHOULD GO TO COLLEGE

Mary N. Moore.

Few writers upon educational subjects of to-day waste time in argument or discussion as to the intellectual superiority of the sexes. The proof of a girl's ability to take as strong an education as a boy has been demonstrated. The points of discussion to which I shall limit myself in this paper are the reasons that appear to be most convincing for a college education for girls. The emphasis in the title of this pamphlet must be placed upon the first and not upon the second word. I shall treat typically four principal reasons.

If a girl goes to college, she will not be likely to marry before she is physically and mentally mature.

My reason for favoring a college education for girls on account of its restraining them from very early marriage is due to a recognition of the necessity, first, of physical and, second, of mental maturity for the girl before she enters into matrimony. The countenancing by modern society of the marriage of very young girls is a blot upon our civilization. A father who could mock at the suggestion of the marriage of his eighteen-year-old son and bustle attendant upon the approaching wedding of his eighteen-year-old daughter. A girl at eighteen smiles benignly upon the preparation to-day may be a little woman and irresistibly attractive to young men, but physically her constitution is no better established than is her boy friend's of the same age. She may have more social ease than the boy of the same age but her judgments are no riper. She may not have to earn the family livelihood, but she will have to be responsible for the way most of her husband's earnings are spent. Girls who contract marriage before full adolescence, who perform the obligations of motherhood, will fade at 25 or 30, will be out of touch with young life at forty, and at fifty will, in most cases be old women, unprogressive, timid in the presence of their adult children, and with the feeling that the interests of life are not for them.

Our grandmothers married early. Women in pioneer countries always marry early. Grim hardships force the young folks to swarm and to make hives of their own. Girls of the farm with few diversions and the daughters of the poor of the cities all marry early; and while early marriages populate the country more rapidly, it is more desirable to improve the mental and physical characteristics of a people than to multiply and inferior type in order to maintain a numerical strength. A French writer, a visitor to this country about the time of the Revolution, said of our women that at sixteen they were charming, at twenty-five they were withered hags. Too early marriage is a sin, not only against the next generation, but against the individual I effort the mother. The college girl has her mind diverted from specific matrimonial plans, even while her studies in the scientific and practical sides of home-making and home-keeping prepare her better for it. The well-springs of sentiment are not dried up, but her attitude toward marriage becomes more serious, and the matter of fitting herself for the responsibilities of the relationship more a matter of deep concern. College women rarely figure in divorce suits. It is the proud boast of more than one American college for women that no graduate of these institutions has ever been divorced. The spirit of the college favors the physical development of girls by supplying athletic exercises suited to their physical life. Physical defects are corrected, and the many activities of the student body keep the minds of the girls from brooding over slight physical disabilities. College women are rarely neurotic, the widely published opinion of those who would dissuade girls from genuine college courses to the contrary notwithstanding.

A college education is a form of insurance against future dependence by giving a girl a wide range of occupational choice.

Back behind the heterogeneous jumble of occupations that attract men and women lies the great law of necessity, which forces humanity to work in order to satisfy humanity's ever-increasing wants. The power of occupational selection is almost a necessity to humanity's happiness in labor. Thousands and millions of groaning, struggling, suffering men and women are unhappy in their work because harsh necessity forces them to labor at unattractive tasks. They are square pegs in round holes. Occasionally a fortuitous circumstance sweeps a child of the poverty-circumscribed classes into surroundings favorable to the development of talent and another child of the poor has his name added to the catalogue of earth's great ones. The reason that so few names of women appear in the lists of the great may be explained by the fact that until the latter century the higher education of women received so little encouragement. Just how much richer in great thought the world might have been had woman in the past enjoyed equal educational advantages with man may only be surmised by what she has achieved in bringing about reforms in education in the professions, and in science since her mental development has been receiving greater consideration. Like the children of the poor the girl of the past who developed her gifts did so because of circumstances more fortuitous than

RHEUMATISM ARRESTED

Many people suffer the tortures of lame muscles and stiffened joints because of impurities in the blood, and each succeeding attack seems more acute until rheumatism has invaded the whole system. To arrest rheumatism it is quite as important to improve your general health as to purify your blood, and the cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion is nature's greatest blood-maker, while its medicinal nourishment strengthens the organs to expel the impurities and uphold your strength. Scott's Emulsion is helping thousands every day who could not find other relief. Refuse the alcoholic substitutes.

were common to the lot of the rest of her sex.

All students of current events realize the large place woman fills in industry. To the woman with meager education there is practically no opening save the work of the factory, shop, farm, or domestic service. The high school graduate has rather greater latitude, in that she may seek employment in certain forms of office work in teaching (usually of an elementary order), or in some semi-industrial art. The college-trained girl may choose from the field of industry, bringing to bear upon her work superior judgment and a greater chance for success, or she may elect to enter any of the professions, the arts, or the sciences, or she may do as her less well-educated sisters will undoubtedly do much earlier in life—marry. And here, again, her chances for success are better. All of the strong women colleges are affording their students special opportunity for pursuing thorough courses in home economics. College women make good housekeepers. They know from scientific study what constitutes a good meal, how babies should be clothed and fed, and they are not ignorant of how to apply their knowledge. Necessity need not drive the college girl into an uncongenial occupation, nor does she have to marry to escape the heart-rending toll of the industrial worker. She can calmly consider where she will cast her life, and after the decision is reached she has the same freedom in working out her own success. Women should have the liberty of choosing their own occupations even more than men, because of the necessity for their physical protection. There are too many girls behind counters during the long hours of department store trade; too many sewing machines running in poorly ventilated city sweatshops; too many overtaxed farmers' wives and daughters; too many unprotected girls filling positions in homes as domestic servants, no one caring for their bodies or for their souls. For the sake of motherhood and the little ones to be born it might be much better for us to have more women as physicians, architects, lawyers, college professors, artists, journalists, and musicians. The college is the friendliest road that leads to these great goals.

A college education makes a woman mistress of herself by training her in self-control. It lifts her above those petty frivolities commonly considered a mark of femininity.

Modern education outside of college rarely tends to teach girls self-control. Feeling and emotion are stressed more than reason. The social life entered into by young girls of high school age is not calculated to calm the pulses of excitable youth. The vanity of parents seeks gratification in the excessive adornment of their young daughters. The love of dress is sometimes a passion even with very young girls. The speech of the young girls of today betrays their excitable temperament. Their sentences are overloaded with adjectives, and their descriptions abound in hyperbole. Emotionally excited girls are easy to lose pulse; temper flashes and reason cannot do its work until after the emotion is spent.

The college girl, taught to respect the sacredness of scientific fact, to think in logical sequence, to admire intellect, and to appreciate true values, exercises better control upon her temper, loses the dominating love of dress which swayed her in her high school days, and by association with thinking woman. Almost all college girls include matrimony in their plans for their future lives but they are not so easily swayed by the opinion or admiration of the opposite sex. The college girl is nearly always highly social, is more amiable toward the minor faults of people, and worries less over trivialities. In this last respect she differs from almost every other class of her fellowships of her own kind, and is sex. The college-trained girl enjoys almost boyishly loyal to her friends, her class, or her sorority.

A college education makes a girl more conscientious as to the disposition she shall make of her life. It develops her sense of personal responsibility.

The greatest obligation upon an individual is not to the work she may elect to perform in life. There is nothing great in any work per se; work is great only in its reflex action on individual character. In the right type of college the girl is taught to answer the proposition, not so much as to what she will do with the work assigned or elected by her, but "What will this elected or assigned work do with me?" She faces the proposition of life in the same fashion; and if the ideals of the college in which she is studying are on a par with those which have typed the American college girl for us, she will "dream dreams and see visions." Hence we find our strongest settlement workers most successful reformers, and our most consecrated missionaries coming from our colleges. The atmosphere of the true woman's college is hospitable to the entertainment of the noblest conceptions and the most unselfish enthusiasms. While the college girl loses none of the spiritual exaltation of great motherhood, she is fired by a humanitarian recognition of the claims of the motherless. We find the college girl studying the child labor laws the questions of the juvenile courts, the pure milk problem, and the condition of the city and country waifs. She is the best social service worker, the happiest and the wisest wife and mother, and the finest type of womanly physical development.

I believe there are many side lines of discussion that might be brought in to show why a girl should go to college; but the lines followed have had, for the most part, a stranger bearing upon the girl in her relation to society than as an individual. I have sought to show not only why the girl herself should seek a college education, but why society should seek to give it to her and to encourage her in securing it. College life, while encouraging marriage and the preservation of the home life of the nation, restrains the girl from entering into the relationship at too early an age. The college arouses interest in the physical development of women, thus saving the individual girl to a happier maturity and guaranteeing a better type in the second generation.

tion. Society is benefited by the college girl's enrichment of thought, and by the expansion of her occupational choice, thus reducing the intense competition among women in the industrial field. The college trains the girl in self-control, lifts her above petty frivolities, makes her more conscientious as to the use she makes of her life, and assists her in coming to a richer self-realization than she is otherwise likely to attain.

HOW UNCLE SAM SPENDS YOUR INCOME TAX DOLLAR.

The American Magazine sent Ray Stannard Baker to Washington to trace your income tax dollar and report penny for penny exactly how Uncle Sam spends it. The result of his investigation appears in the August number. Under the indirect method of taxation, by which we still continue to raise most of our revenues. Few people felt any concern as to what the government spent, but with a direct tax like the income tax several hundred thousand Americans will feel this year, for the first time, just what it means to help pay warships and pay for necessary post offices. Following is part of Mr. Baker's report:

"The very first thing that struck me, and struck hard, was the fact that, although we have had no great war in fifty years (and only a little one sixteen years ago), over sixty cents of every dollar that Uncle Sam collects from you and me (directly or indirectly) goes for 'military purposes,' including continuing expenses of past wars—pensions."

"I think that few people realize what this means—in a nation which considers itself peculiarly devoted to peace."

"Sixty-three per cent to the Army, Navy and pensions, and only thirty-seven per cent to pay all the other vast and useful purposes of the Government, excluding postal service and the preposterous sinking fund—required by law, but never provided in fact. This thirty-seven per cent only is available for building the Panama Canal, improving our rivers and harbors, supporting the Indians, encouraging agriculture, public health and education, to say nothing of taking care of the entire machinery of civil government—Congress, Executive, Courts, and the diplomatic and consular service."

"In the estimates for the new year the expenditure of the Government for all purposes (with the exceptions above stated) reaches the vast sum of $740,000,000. Of this $466,000,000 go for war purposes and forty-five per cent of this goes for pensions, retirements, and interest on war debts."

WEST VIRGINIA ITEMS OF NEWS.

$300,000 in Coupons Redeemed.

Realizing that there are many yet outstanding, Judge Littlepage of the Kanawha county Circuit Court has extended the time limit for the redemption of Chesapeake & Ohio excess fare coupons until July 31. According to the decree of the court the commission appointed to audit these coupons was to have been dissolved on July 1, but it was decided at the last minute to extend the time.

Nearly twenty-five thousand of these claims have been paid by the commission after a year's work, and many more were readjusted according to a report compiled by General Oxley.

An expenditure of $306,414.75 of the money of the Chesapeake & Ohio railway company was required to pay off the various claims, which represented 2,037,216 coupons.

When it is considered that more than two million coupons have been handled in the way of listing checking and auditing some idea can be had of the enormous amount of work which developed upon the members of the commission and their employees in the redemption of the coupons.

All claims were received for put in to packets numbered and filed with the name of claimant, record number, post-office address, and the amount due entered on the record.

All vouchers were listed with the record number, name of payee and the amount. The name under which they were mailed to claimants and the amount paid out were entered upon the books of the commission and charged to the funds on deposit in the Citizens' National, the Charleston Bank, and the Elk Banking Company, all of Charleston. It was necessary for the commissioners to keep separate accounts with each bank in which the funds of the Chesapeake & Ohio company had been deposited.

The clerical force of the commission numbered nearly one hundred during the first few months, then it was reduced from time to time until only eleven clerks are now retained. It will require a few weeks more for this force to wind up the affairs of the commission.

The $306,414.75 paid out by the commission represents excess fare of one cent a mile paid by patrons of the C. & O. road in consequence of a restraining order issued by S. C. Burdette, then judge of the Kanawha Circuit court, against the State of West Virginia, preventing the application of the two-cent rate law as enacted by the legislature.

The constitutionality of the law was decided by the supreme court of the United States last year, whereupon S. D. Littlepage, present judge of the Kanawha Circuit Court, created the special commission to pay off the claims of those patrons of the road who held rebate coupons. The commission began work last August.

West Virginia Coming to Front.

"There still remain in West Virginia, as in other states, old-time mines with antiquated methods, but those who see the new West Virginia realize that in a few years there will be few fields better developed, and few where more care is taken to provide favorable living conditions."

"In no small degree it is creditable to the West Virginia operators that two important ameliorative movements have found in that state their active support. One of these is the closing of the saloons through the length and breadth of the state. This improvement became operative on the first day of July, and has the approval of the mine owners. Another need of the industry which the West Virginia operators have cheerfully met is the liability law. Some of the corporation chiefs in other states, who have been disposed to regard West Virginia coal companies as lacking in any interest in their miners, will recognize in this law legislation of a kind which they, for the most part have vigorously fought."

"In fact decency and thrift are bid for sedulously in these two good measures, and there is little doubt that if the operators throughout the state insist that the anti-saloon law be kept, West Virginia will soon lead its neighbors states not only in per capita earnings but in per capita savings and individual character."

Thrown from Automobile and Killed.

We believe the first fatal automobile accident that ever occurred in this county was at Westmoreland last Saturday evening when Charles Hughes, a chauffeur of Huntington, was instant killed.

F. W. Boyce, who was driving the car, a high power racing machine, evidently was traveling at a high rate of speed, and in going over a small bridge near Mrs. Polly Vinson's residence in attempting to hold his companion in, lost control and the car struck a tree. Hughes was thrown some distance from the tree and his neck was broken, causing instant death. Boyce was not injured.

Squire A. G. Brown went to the scene of the accident and had the following coroner's jury summoned: H. H. Rutherford, foreman; W. H. Robinson, C. A. Davis, John Wilson, B. S. Akers and Homer B. Marcum.

The jury found Boyce guilty of speeding and Squire Brown acting on the verdict of the jury fined him $25 and costs.—Ceredo Advance.

Industrial War Probable.

That industrial warfare similar to that which raged last year and the year before on Paint and Cabin creeks in the Kanawha mining district may again break out in West Virginia is intimated by those in touch with the situation and the further hint is that the scene of strife is to be Logan county, the fields toward which the union organizers are excited to turn their attention next. It is said that the organization of the Logan field will be forced by unseen hands, probably directed by the operators in the fields which find themselves in difficulty in the matter of competing with the neighboring fields which are not organized. The operators in the unorganized fields are aware of the movement which is near and are preparing for a resistance no less bitter than that which marked the strike in Kanawha.

Whether or not there is anything in the suggestion that the organization of the Logan fields is sought by the operators of the Kanawha and other organized fields, who in their turn alleged that organization was forced upon them by operators of organized fields in other states, there is little doubt that the spirit of unrest has permeated the Logan field or that it has been planted there so effectively that a crisis must come sooner or later.—Mingo Republican.

Judge Lettwich Nominated.

Judge Everett Lettwich, of this city, was nominated by the Progressives Saturday at Welch to represent this district in the State Senate. The judge is thoroughly posted as to the politics of the State and will bring out some new ideas in his campaign, which he says he will make in every county of the district. That he is an advanced thinker, does not have to be stated by us. He thinks for himself and has the courage to express his opinion. He is emphatically against both the old parties and will make a lively campaign on the hustings when he opens at the proper time. Of course he is not anticipating election, but is playing his cards for future results.

Gov. Hatfield a Vote Loser.

We have it upon the authority of a few prominent local Republicans that Governor Hatfield's recent visit to and calamity howl in Logan lost the Republican party hereabouts more votes than they had expected to gain by the chief executive's presence at the county convention of the party. As a vote loser the Governor is some good; for instance, remember how he had them backing up in his own campaign for the office he now holds in 1912. Come soon again to Logan, and then we'll simply make the Democratic ticket the unanimous choice hereabouts.—Logan Democrat.

Sixth Senatorial Convention.

The Democratic Convention of the Sixth Senatorial District of West Virginia, comprising the counties of Mingo, Wayne, Wyoming and McDowell, is hereby called to meet at Williamson, West Virginia, on the third day of August, 1914, at two o'clock p. m., for the purpose of nominating a candidate for State Senate in said district, to be voted for as such candidate in the election to be held in November, 1914, and to transact any and all other business which may come before said convention.

Forty-One Die in June.

The records in the office of Earl A. Henry, chief of the state department of mines, show that during the month of June there were 41 fatal accidents in the coal mines of West Virginia.

For the six months ending June 30, 1914, there were 370 fatalities, but it will be recalled that 180 of these occurred in the disaster at Eccles in April. This would leave 190 fatalities with the mines running under normal conditions.

Cooper Beats Shott.

Edward Cooper, Bramwell coal operator, was nominated as the Republican candidate for congress from the Fifth district at the primary election held on last Saturday. Cooper carried practically every county in the district over his only opponent, Hugh Ike Schott, Bluefield editor and publisher.

Cooper won by a majority of approximately 2,000 on the incomplete returns of the first part of the week.

Three Prisoners Escape.

Prisoners cut through the wall last night in the county jail and three of them made good their escape. Officers discovered the attempt in time to prevent a general delivery, and made a close pursuit but three went free. There were several shots fired in the chase but it is thought no one was hurt.—Williamson News.

We are authorized to announce J. P. HANEY, of Morgan County, as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress, Ninth district, primary August 1, 1914.

Look out for the campaign liar. The last two days is the time he flourishes.

Everybody concedes that Gov. McCreary would be the strongest candidate in November.

Some fellows have been held to the grand jury of Boyd county for "rocking" a train. They should be sent to join the idiot who rocks a boat.

Gov. McCreary is the only candidate for the full Senatorial term who has done anything for the mountain people. No other Governor has ever given this section any appointments.

McCreary will be nominated for Senator Saturday of this week. When Louisville decided to support him it brought into his column thousands in other sections who were hesitating.

McCreary is the Eastern Kentucky candidate for Senator. The others are from Western Kentucky—Nelson county and McCreary county. It is not fair to have both the Senators from one end of the State. We already have Senator James from Western Kentucky.

"War has been declared in Europe between Serbia and Austria-Hungary, Russia, France and England will take the part of Serbia, and Germany and Italy will join forces with Austria. At least, this seems to be inevitable at the time we go to press. If this threat should materialize the war will be the greatest in the history of the world.

Prominent Democratic leaders in Louisville held a meeting Monday night and pledged their support to Gov. McCreary. They voted to wage an active fight at the polls for him. Among those present were the heads of the party organization. Louisville has been considered an uncertain quantity until this meeting took place. As the organization goes, so goes Louisville, and the State usually goes the same way.

The ninth district has a promising array of candidates for the Democratic nomination for Congress, and a somewhat peculiar coincidence about it is that every aspirant has a "J" in his name. The candidates are W. J. Fields, the present representative; J. P. Hane, of Morgan county; John S. Haley, of Carter county; and J. Roe Young, of Mason county.

But there is not a red "Jay" in the bunch.

Gov. McCreary Certain He'll Win.

Gov. James B. McCreary returned to Frankfort last night after a campaign trip to Pike, Floyd and Letcher counties, during which he made five speeches and spoke to hundreds of Democrats. The Governor was highly pleased with his reception and assurances of support in the mountain country. "You can say," said Gov. McCreary, "that I am certain to win the nomination for Senator next Saturday," and he fully expressed that confidence in his manner as well as speech. The Governor said thousands of Democrats had told him that he was the strongest by 15,000 to 20,000 of any of the candidates seeking the senatorial nomination and the safest nominee that could be put up to run against the common enemy.—Louisville Times.

One coal mine company in Eastern Kentucky paid income tax on one million and a half income amounting to more than $13,000. That is thirteen times as much income tax as the whole of Hardin county paid. Still there are some people who talk about the poor mountaineers.—Elizabethtown News.

DR. M. C. WATSON ON SENATORIAL RACE

Lawrence County Democrats Urged to Support Gov. McCreary.

The primary which decides the nomination for a Democratic candidate for the United States Senate will be held August 1st, at which time the people fasten upon themselves, by their vote, for a term of six years a law-maker whose position is of the highest importance to every citizen. Senators occupying the place of safe-guard between the House of Representatives and the Chief Executive.

There is available on the list to be voted for, one whose life has been tried in such capacity and proven to be of the highest worth. The fact that his political career has been a success, and one of which we should all be proud, is due to his high quality of intelligence and soundness of heart. He does what he does, and says little about it after it is done, and the doing has proven him to have the judgment that we need in this high place.

The man to whom I refer is Governor James B. McCreary. For him not to receive a majority of the votes of Lawrence county would mean to discredit the appointments he has made. It would mean the endorsement of one of two other men who are engaging in a political battle which would undoubtedly hazard the election, if either should be nominated.

When you cast your ballot, if you are a Democrat at heart, cast it for a man who, if nominated, can undoubtedly be elected.

M. G. WATSON.

NOMINATE M'CREARY AND VICTORY IS ASSURED.

The Princeton Leader publishes the following editorial urging the nomination of Gov. McCreary as the safest candidate to put up in the present party crisis:

"On Saturday the first day of August the Democrats of Kentucky will be called upon to name a candidate for United States Senator to be voted for November next.

"There are three candidates for both the long and short terms. It is to the long term that we direct these remarks. In this race three eminent Kentuckians are asking that the banner be placed in their hands: Gov. Jas. B. McCreary, ex-Gov. Beckham and Congressman Stanley, all men of ability and competent to represent us in the United States Senate, but unfortunately for both Beckham and Stanley and the Democratic party, if either of them should be nominated in the August primary, we would go into the final race handicapped with a nominee whose ability to win in November has been questioned in every quarter of the State by thousands of voters.

"This unhappy state of affairs has been brought about by the fact that each of these gentlemen represents a faction in the great Democratic party of the State, which has long troubled conservative voters and now threaten to rend the party in twain, and send a Republican to the Senate and pave the way for a Republican Governor and State ticket in 1915."

It is not the purpose of the Leader to spread a false alarm, but to remind its readers that these things have happened right here in Kentucky within the last decade and will happen again next year as "sure as gun, or iron," if we do not quit our foolishness of pitting candidates on the back who are traversing the State from end to end and top to bottom, hurling epithets, making charges and counter-charges, all the time grinding out ammunition with which the enemy are merely gathering to bombard the Democratic camps with not many days hence.

Just think of a party with a Democratic National Administration in every branch, which is making good at every turn, most of the principal cities and States of the Union in the Democratic fold and living in the good old Kentucky home ourselves beneath the shade of our own Democratic vine and fig tree.

Can it be that we are going to suffer these two political gladiators to so rivet our eyes upon their carnage in the arena till the ashes of the Republic of Vesuvius, which always is slumbering in Kentucky, shall overwhelm the party of Jefferson?

The same conditions confronted us in 1911, and after much casting about we acted sanely and called Gov. McCreary from the peaceful walks of private life to lead the cohorts of Democracy to battle and to victory. A Republican majority of 19,000 in 1907 was turned into a Democratic majority of 31,000 in 1911.

Who said that Gov. McCreary was too old? Nobody but O'Rear. He was all right then and he is all right now. They know it, too, but it is ambition that spurs them on to set their statue on the pedestal that he has earned.

Several months ago hundreds of patriotic and far-seeing Democrats, seeing the maelstrom caused by the counter-currents of the so-called "Beckham" and "anti-Beckham" partisans of the State, and desirous of averting the dire calamity so imminent to the party, again called the old war horse of Democracy to once more lend his good sword to the cause. After much reluctance he again entered the arena and tells you that if you place the Democratic banner in his hands on the first day of August he will triumphantly and securely place it on the enemy's ramparts in November. Nobody doubts this. His nomination will leave the bookmakers nothing to do but "stack up" on the size of his majority.

Now, fellow Democrats, you have the picture. Will you cast your vote for an uncertainty or a "dead cinch"? If you would win all the way through cast your vote for James B. McCreary. His life is an open book; for many years he has served you faithfully and well and comes at your call once more to lead us from defeat to victory.

He is honest, he is competent, he is a Democrat in whom there is no guile; he is spreading no dissension, and the party will not lose a vote in November on account of word or act of his in this campaign. He can win at the polls and will make you an able Senator. What more can you wish?

Fellow Democrats, ponder well before you cast your vote in this race. You will make no mistake in casting it for our beloved Governor, James B. McCreary.

BETTER ROADS.

Roads are to a country what the veins and the arteries are to the body. As we feel the use to tell how much strength, vigor, and vitality there is in the body, so we look at the roads of a county, state or a community to tell whether the people are hearty, healthy, wealthy, industrious and progressive or not. We have studied Domestic science some, better still, we have been in countries where they had good roads and we have been in countries where they had bad roads, and we notice that it is not always the richer states and counties that have the best roads, but it is where the people want roads. We believe any state or county in this union could have such better roads if they wanted them. The greatest cause of sorry roads is not always because of sorry people, but because people are uneducated, they need to be taught the value of good roads, not only so but how to make good roads. Any individual should be willing to give a right of way through his plantation, for the fact that it will double the value of his land, it will pay him back a hundred-fold, in a hundred different ways, and will be a benediction to the whole community. We believe it would be a good policy to have a "Good Road Society," organized in every county and in each district of that county to hold institutes, at least four times a year in the places where they could get the most people together, for the purpose of educating people on this very important subject. We believe that Uncle Sam would be doing the people of this union more service if he would use the money that he is using on some of these rivers to build dams or building pikes and constructing bridges across the streams, however this is our own idea about this.

We asked a teamster the other day how long a new wagon lasted him. He said: "About one year and then sometimes it had to be repaired several times." This set me thinking, for we asked a teamster where they had much better roads, though not what you would call good roads the same question, and he said a good wagon would last three or four years, with very little repairing. Then when we consider the number of single-trees, double-trees, tugs, back-bands and very often crippled horses and mules, which is due to the steep rocky hills and the mud holes, all of which is a loss to the teamster himself. It would pay him to pay a stiff tax and then do a hundred or more dollars worth of work on the road each year till he had good roads to go upon. All the people should join in gladly to help him for he brings in the necessities of life.

This would be such a blessing to all, of every walk of life and we would have better markets, better schools, better churches and better everything. Lord hasten the day when we will have better roads. First we are interested in the salvation of the souls of mankind then in their temporal salvation. For we believe this is one of the ways of reaching the real man.

Yours for the people of Kentucky,
J. H. DAWSON, Inez, Ky.

MOONLIGHT SCHOOLS IN HARDIN

Be a Worker! Talk Up Go to Church! Get Your Neighbor to Go!

GO TO CHURCH. Be a worker in the GO TO CHURCH campaign.

This GO TO CHURCH movement is a campaign more important than all the presidential campaigns. In a presidential campaign you get worked up to a high pitch of enthusiasm, exhorting and advancing arguments for your favorite candidate. Here is a chance for you to display your enthusiasm and argumentative powers. If you GO TO CHURCH your work is not finished. You can do a great deal more.

GET YOUR NEIGHBOR TO GO. TALK UP THE GO TO CHURCH MOVEMENT. THERE ARE MANY EFFECTIVE WAYS IN WHICH YOU CAN DO THIS. SANDWICH YOUR TALK ABOUT THE BASEBALL SCORES WITH A FEW REMARKS ABOUT THE GO TO CHURCH MOVEMENT. MAKE AN OCCASIONAL ENGAGEMENT FOR "AFTER CHURCH SUNDAY." NOW THAT THE GO TO CHURCH MOVEMENT HAS HAD A HEALTHY START KEEP IT MOVING. DON'T LET IT DIE OUT. WHENEVER AN ITEM IN THE NEWSPAPERS ON INCREASED CHURCH ATTENDANCE OR THE GO TO CHURCH MOVEMENT STRIKES YOUR EYE CALL YOUR NEIGHBOR'S ATTENTION TO IT.

Always be quick to RUSH TO THE DEFENSE of the church and churchgoing. There are always to be found in every community persons ever ready to make a joke of the church, churchgoers and the churchgoing movement. Go after these persons. Don't let them get away with it. If you can't convince them that the church and churchgoers are all right make them cease their insults. There is too much fun poked at the church these days. Even the churchgoing man is tempted to join in the laugh which greets some cheap joker who attacks sacred things. Honor to the man who rebuffs the cheap wit. Secretly his fellows will admire him for it.

GO TO CHURCH next Sunday!

GO TO CHURCH every Sunday!

Be a missionary by getting your neighbor to GO TO CHURCH!

Young Man Who Goes to Church Regularly Is Sure to Be Successful In Life

YOUNG man, GO TO CHURCH!

The young man, more than any one else, is in need of spiritual strength to do battle with the world. He is beset with temptations. The lessons he is taught in the house of God will guide him in the path of rectitude. And they will be an asset to him in the daily strife of the material world.

NOT ONLY WILL GOING TO CHURCH HELP THE YOUNG MAN IN A SPIRITUAL WAY, BUT IT WILL BE OF APPARENT WORLDLY BENEFIT. A YOUNG MAN WHO GOES TO CHURCH REGULARLY IS BOUND TO MAKE A FAVORABLE IMPRESSION IN THE COMMUNITY IN WHICH HE LIVES. HE WILL QUICKLY GET A REPUTATION FOR HONESTY AND UPRIGHT LIVING. HIS EMPLOYER WILL BE QUICK TO NOTE HIS EXEMPLARY HABITS. IF THERE IS A POSITION OF TRUST TO BE FILLED HE IS THE MOST LIKELY CANDIDATE. GOING TO CHURCH BRINGS ITS REWARD NOT ONLY IN THE LIFE TO COME, BUT IN THE PRESENT ONE. AND THEN THERE IS THE SOCIAL SIDE. THE YOUNG MAN WHO GOES TO CHURCH IS CERTAIN TO BE INVITED TO THE MOST EXCLUSIVE FUNCTIONS. THOSE WHO MAKE UP THE INVITATION LISTS NEVER OVERLOOK HIM. HE IS IN CONSTANT DEMAND. THERE ISN'T A GIRL IN TOWN WHO IS ASHAMED TO BE SEEN IN HIS COMPANY.

All young men will have to admit the truth of these statements. Surely it isn't unmanly to GO TO CHURCH. Read the lives of any of the great men, and invariably you will find that in early life they JOINED THE CHURCH. It was in the church that they laid the foundation of their great careers. Think of the happiness it gives your parents to see you at divine service and for them to know that you are on the right road.

Young man, if you want to be successful in life JOIN THE CHURCH, GO TO CHURCH.

GO TO CHURCH next Sunday!

GO TO CHURCH every Sunday!

Half Entire Population of St. Paul at Service on Go to Church Sunday

GO TO CHURCH!

In every village, hamlet, town and city in the United States the cry is heard. Many have had their GO TO CHURCH Sundays already. The reports are very encouraging. About half of St. Paul went to service on one particular Sunday. The pastors unreservedly pronounced the results BEYOND THEIR EXPECTATIONS. As one pastor described the scene at his church, every man, woman and child in his congregation seemed to have made a special effort to get to church. Other pastors told of enthusiastic responses of persons who had not attended church in years at the end of the service, declaring that "this doesn't mean only once. I'll be here next Sunday too."

WITH FEW EXCEPTIONS THE CHURCHES THROUGHOUT THE CITY WERE FILLED TO CAPACITY, AND MANY WERE OVERCROWDED. SUNDAY SCHOOL ROOMS LONG UNUSED AT SUCH A TIME WERE THROWN OPEN TO CARE FOR THE OVERFLOW IN MANY CHURCHES. THE LARGEST ATTENDANCES WERE AT THE MORNING SERVICES. AT THE KNOX PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH THREE MEMBERS OF THE CHURCH WERE UNABLE TO FIND SEATS. THEY RETIRED TO THE BASEMENT, WHERE, SEATED ON THE EDGE OF THE COAL BIN AND BOXES, THEY HEARD THE SERMON BY THE REV. B. S. BATES.

Grandma Seymour, ninety-five years old, probably was one of the oldest persons who answered the appeal. She attended the morning service at the First Baptist church. She lives at the Home of the Friendless, 469 Collins street. When the GO TO CHURCH call was first issued Mrs. Seymour grieved because she thought she could not be one of the thousands. The Quest Bible class of women of the First Baptist church Sunday school, learning her desire, sent a carriage for her. Accompanied by Mrs. Parr, eighty-four years old, she made the trip without difficulty and was happy.

The Kind Of Government He Liked

By JOHN G. LARNED

"In any event, the crown prince must not be exposed," said Von Bernstein.

"Which means that I must lose myself to the world."

The reply was made by Count Esterhoff, on whose person had been found a pack of marked cards. A party of young noblemen and the prince had been playing baccarat. His royal highness had lost heavily, and Esterhoff had won. In order to force the latter to return his winnings the prince, who sat near the winner, slipped the marked pack into his pocket and then accused him of having won his money by cheating. To prove his accusation he demanded that Esterhoff be searched, and the cards were found.

No one was deceived, nor was it intended that any one should be deceived. The scheme was to effect the return of the money the prince had lost to Esterhoff without the help apparent being obliged to demean himself by accepting it as a gift.

"There is a way out of it if you choose to avail yourself of it," said Bernstein.

"What way?"

"Give up what you have won to the prince and the matter will be hushed up."

"That would be to acknowledge myself guilty. I prefer to appear guilty to the world and preserve my own self respect."

"Nonsense, count. It is our duty to preserve the sovereign from reproach. He belongs to the people. Let them lose confidence in him and what follows? Anarchy."

Esterhoff stood firm. He was excluded from the prince's set on the ground that he had used marked cards. He gave his winnings to the poor, which was considered a proof that his conscience had in the end got the better of him. Under the name of Peter Esterhoff he went to America. His family estates had been lost by his father, and it was his ambition to make money and redeem them.

Twenty years rolled by. The crown prince had become king under the title of Oscar VIII. He had remained a gambler and a spendthrift, though the ill success to recoup his losses with Count Esterhoff had kept him from trying such a method again. During the two decades that had since passed he had become personally bankrupt. All that saved him was that the wealthy nobility, fearing that if he collapsed he would carry the government and them down with him, kept him aloof.

A wealthy American came to the capital and took a residence. He was unmarried and lived entirely alone. Nobody knew why he had come, why he remained or what he did with himself. Bankers knew that he had brought with him unlimited credit from America, and it seemed to them that the money he drew was expended for something, though they did not know what.

One day the king received notice from a lawyer that one of his notes which was due must be paid at once. Oscar forwarded the note through his chamberlain to a noble who had been appointed by the other nobles to take care of the king's debts. The amount was paid, but other similar notices came pouring in so fast that it was found impossible to take care of them. His majesty was informed that there was danger of a public scandal. Many of these claims were for money advanced for illegitimate purposes. The king asked who was pressing them and was told that an American multimillionaire was supposed to be at the bottom of it all.

One morning the American received a "command" to appear at the palace. He replied that he had no wish to visit the king; if the king wished to see him he would find him at home. The next day the royal carriage stopped at the American's house; the king alighted and was received in the drawing room.

"I have called," said Oscar, "to learn the meaning of your having bought up claims against me and pressing them for payment."

"Perhaps your majesty may remember when you were crown prince slipping a pack of marked cards into my pocket."

"Your pocket?"

"I am Count Esterhoff."

The king blushed.

"I have kept those cards," continued Esterhoff, "and would like to sell them to your majesty."

"How much do you ask for them?"

Inquired Oscar after collecting his faculties.

"Two hundred thousand American dollars for each card."

"Great heavens, man! What do you mean?"

"I mean that in my youth I lived under a system wherein the chief men and women found it to their interest to support injustice. If your people still feel the same in this matter let them raise $10,000,000 and buy the cards. I hold your notes to that amount, and the notes will go with the cards."

After a great effort those whose fortunes depended on the stability of the government raised the amount. As fast as the money came in they would redeem one or more cards and corresponding notes till all were taken up. Then Esterhoff instead of redeeming his family domains went back to America. He said he had no use for a government except of the people, by the people and for the people.

THE HOME CIRCLE AND ITS INTERESTS.

Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers as They Join The Home Circle at Evening Tide.

A Husband's Duty.

A very grave responsibility has the man assumed in his marriage. Dotting parents have confided to his care the welfare of a loved daughter, and a trusting woman has risked all her future happiness in his keeping. Largely will it depend upon him whether her pathway shall be strewn with thorns or roses.

Let your wife fully understand your business. In nearly every case she will be found a most valuable adviser when she understands all your circumstances. If a dispute arises dismiss the subject with a kind word and do not seek to carry your point by discussion. It is a glorious achievement to master one's own temper. You may discover that you are in an error, and if your wife is wrong she will gladly, in her cooler moments acknowledge the fault.

Never neglect your wife for all the world besides. Never deceive; confidence once lost can never be wholly regained. Never give all your pleasant words and smiles to strangers—the kindest words and the sweetest smiles should be reserved for home. Home should be your heaven.

Never fail to tell your wife the truth; if truthful you get your reward—you get your punishment if you deceive. Never fail to say a kind, encouraging word to your wife; praise and encourage her. To keep her love, be kind and loving—always be a lover.

And last and above all to keep your wife's love and respect, be a strictly temperate man. It would be difficult to love and honor a man to whom she is compelled to look down upon, who would drag himself, wife and children down to poverty, shame and disgrace. One and all turn from the intoxicating cup. That alone makes more misery, causes more unhappy homes and is the greatest curse on earth. God pity the poor wife with an intemperate man. Her life's happiness will be completely destroyed by such a union. Better a thousand times the single, free and independent maidenhood than married to a man addicted to dissipated habits. Don't go down town every night to see a man and then expect your wife to be all smiles when you come home.

The Happy Home.

The art of the perfect housekeeper lies in her concealing her efforts. To the uninitiated her work seems done by magic, so smoothly does the wheels of domestic management roll along. If there is a jar in the kitchen, her first effort is to smooth it quietly over so that there is no reflection of it in the serene atmosphere above stairs. In every emergency the true housewife is mistress of herself.

We have all seen such households, where the mistress was always ready to receive her friends and her husband's friends, where everything seemed to move by some unseen rhythm. The secret certainly lies in perfect system, in "timing one's turns," doing the routine work on exactly the same day and time of the day each week; and in training the servants to work so methodically that they always know what is expected of them. If housewives were more methodical in their way of laying out their servant's work for each day, and in adhering to it, there would be less trouble with servants.

Did You Ever Think?

Did you ever think as a hearse passed by?

That it would not be long until you or I

Would be taking a ride in that black plumed hack?

And never remember the coming back?

Did you ever think as you strive for gold

That a dead man's hand can't a dollar hold?

No matter how much you earn or save,

You must leave it all when you go to the grave.

It is better to buy a cheap bouquet

For a living soul this very day

Than a bushel of roses, white and red,

To place on his casket when he is dead.

—Exchange.

Marriage makes or mars a woman's life, and a young girl should be plainly taught that marriage with a man lacking certain qualities is a most deplorable, irremediable blunder. She must be made to feel that unless a man is temperate, moral, honest and gentle, he has no right to expect to associate with her, that having these qualities, if she loves him with a love that time has tested and proven, she is pretty safe in trusting herself to him.

How many good things we have to be thankful for—the flowers, the fruit, the harvest, the seasons, day and night, the sun, moon and stars, the power to enjoy all the beauties of nature and art with the eye, the ear, the odor of flowers with the nostrils, the foods that give us health and strength, the blessed sleep that comes without price to the poorest.

If there is any dog in a man it is pretty apt to growl when his food is not to his taste.

THE MAN OF A THOUSAND

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1914, by Associated Literary Press.

They called him "Judge" Dale because in the far west you never "mistake" a man when you can call him "colonel" or "judge." As James Dale looked more like a judge than a colonel, they called him as I have said. He was a mine owner, and when things went wrong he could make hot times for his engineers and foremen, but he didn't do it in a vulgar way. He was always a gentleman, even when he cursed the hardest. As a matter of fact, the judge's motto was "good form," and he carried it out in his clothes, his cigars, his dinners.

I have it on good authority that Judge Dale was not vulgarly started when he received word from Denver that his handsome wife, to whom he had been married five years and who was visiting friends, had taken an old lover's arm and severed conjugal relations by eloping. He went through the daily routine just the same for two or three days, and he had the same placid look and the same even voice as he called his head clerk into the private office and said:

"Thomas, I am going away for a few days, and you will take charge."

"Yes, sir," replied Thomas, and the next morning the judge was on his way to Denver. He picked up his clew there without having eloped anything or soiled the polish of his shoes. He met friends and talked politics and real estate and mines, and lighting a fresh cigar, he took a train for the east. Arriving in New York city, he paid a detective to locate the couple.

A steamer was sailing for the Mediterranean at the end of the fourth day, and when she departed the judge was one of her passengers. There were more than a hundred others, and as the weather was also stormy for the first two or three days out no one commented on the fact that the passenger who was registered as Major Davis stuck close to his cabin and had his meals brought to him by a steward. Judge Dale had changed his name, but he had no idea of changing his identity. There were laughter and conversation and a clatter of dishes as all the passengers finally gathered for dinner for the first time since leaving Sandy Hook. To the right of the captain sat one of the handsomest ladies and one of the finest looking gentlemen on the list; but, taken altogether, it was a grand array of wealth and culture. Dinner was fairly under way and the lady on the captain's right was beaming when she happened to cast her eyes down the table, and her face went as white as death in a second. Half a dozen people caught her words as she whispered to her supposed husband:

"John, there is the judge!"

The man looked, and the color went out of his cheeks and his jaw fell. Near the foot of the table sat the man who had taken a new name. He was cool and placid, and only the ghost of a smile hovered around his mouth. He looked the woman and the man full in the eyes for a minute, but made no sign of recognition.

"What is it?" asked the captain as "Mrs. Bemis" shuddered and gasped and seemed on the point of fainting.

"A sudden illness—heart trouble!" she stammered as she left the table for her stateroom.

At every meal Major Davis faced the gully pair. Some of the passengers suspected nothing, but others insisted that there was a queer mystery about the major. The major gave nothing away. It wouldn't have been good form. The woman avoided him as far as possible, but two or three times a day he found excuse to speak to her.

The steamer was to call at the Azores. One morning about 10 o'clock she made harbor, and it was given out aboard that she would not get away before midnight. Everybody was anxious for a brief run ashore—everybody but Mrs. Bemis. She feared that she might overexert and bring on another attack of heart trouble. Mr. Bemis had decided to stay with her when Major Davis hunted him out and said:

"I trust you will make one of a little party going ashore, and that you will bring your revolver along as I shall mine."

"The party is—is"—began Mr. Bemis as his face blanched.

"A very exclusive one—just the two of us, you see. You have a pistol, I suppose?"

"Yes."

"Ah, of course! We may find game, you know. Do you wish to speak to your wife first?"

"No."

"She's gone to lie down, eh? Well, let's be off."

The two engaged a boat as soon as landing and pulled away to a wooded cape, and two hours later a dead man was brought back in the boat. It was Mr. Bemis. He had accidentally shot himself while shooting at a bird.

When the accident became known and it was found that Mrs. Bemis was to go on with the ship instead of ashore to see her husband to his last resting place, there was an outcry over her want of feeling, but it did not reach her ears. She was in the stateroom under the doctor's care, and none of the passengers saw her again.

When the major had finished his work at the island he took a steamer for New York and home, and upon entering his office at the usual hour and in the usual way he said to his chief clerk:

"Thomas, I am back and feeling better. Bring me the balance sheets for the past four weeks."

Anty Drudge—"You are a wicked woman to talk that way. I am real cross with you. If you'd be sensible and use Fels-Naptha Soap, like I do, you'd have plenty of time to read and rest."

Many a perfectly well woman loses her health and good looks all of a sudden, and wonders why she can't do as much work as she used to. It's because she has worn herself out.

Every woman can take things easy if she will use Fels-Naptha Soap for the hard part of her work. Fels-Naptha dissolves grease and makes dirt disappear in cool or lukewarm water.

FRUIT TO DRIVE OUT MOONSHINE

The real economical need of the Kentucky mountains, according to the report of a survey made by agents for the Government Canning Club work to the State Department of Agriculture, is a solution of the elemental transportation problem of hauling a load both ways. They are producing little for sale, while wagon loads of merchandise are hauled from the railroad twenty and thirty miles at a cost of 65 cents the hundredweight. Inferentially it gives to moonshining more of an economical than a moral cast, for the conversion of corn into liquor multiplies its cash value, makes it easier to handle and cheaper to transport.

The Government agents intend to demonstrate that, risks aside, the canning of fruit is more profitable and more easily marketed. The mountains abound in wild blackberries, the best peaches and the finest sweet potatoes in Kentucky. The mountain people have no more to learn about the handling and marketing of fruits than people of any other section, the report says. It is only more vital to them, because they are more bountifully supplied with the raw material, and it is their only resource. And the statement that fruits are their only resource does not bespeak poverty, the report goes on to say. Properly developed the mountains of Kentucky should become a fruit producing region that will make the land valuable and the people wealthy.

Benefit of Canning.

The little band of Canning Club experts who crossed the mountains from Hazard to Hindman and back again and over to Hyden met a woman on the way carrying four gallons of blackberries to town, where they would be sold for 15 cents the gallon. A gallon of berries canned would bring 60 cents at a cost of 5 cents the quart. One quart, selling for 15 cents, would pay the cost and freight of a gallon of canned berries, leaving a net profit of 45 cents on the gallon, a net increase in the profit of at least 35 cents in favor of canning the berries on the face of it. This, however, is multiplied to the profit of the producer many times, for the canned goods can be shipped out in bulk in the freight wagons running to the railroad town, and instead of picking a few berries and then hastening over the mountains to market, the people can be picking and canning throughout the season.

It has to be done right, though, as the report shows; for one big school in Eastern Kentucky that has established a canning branch has a problem several thousand cans of berries lying. The berries had been picked into milk buckets. Bacteria peculiar to milk set to work on them. The berries were cooked the proper length of time to kill the natural bacteria of the berries, but they must be cooked to a pulp in the cans now in order to make them keep.

Scientific Method.

The Government project is to teach the scientific method, which is simple enough but requires the berries to be gathered in clean, wholesome receptacles.

Rockcastle, Laurel, Harlan, Magoffin and Whitley counties have Government agents, as have several counties in Central and Western Kentucky, taking up the tomato canning club proposition. Peaches and sweet potatoes are going to waste by the wagonload in the mountains for lack of knowledge of their market, ableness and of the proper way to put them up for the market.

The Government agents are not looking beyond the conservation of the food products the mountaineers already have; but the development of the plan they are inaugurating may make the mountains the richest section of the State without counting the coal.

Reports from the girls' canning clubs indicate that they will have a surprising yield of tomatoes, notwithstanding the fact that the gardens as a rule were destroyed by the drouth. They prepared the ground and planted and cultivated under expert advice.

SANITARY RULES FOR LIVE STOCK

Testing of dairy herds for tuberculosis will be conducted in the future under regulations of the State Live Stock Sanitary Board, without cost to the owner and without the total loss of such cattle as may be infected.

This object has been preserved in the rules prepared by the board. All cattle found to be infected must be killed, quarantined or isolated. Such cattle may be shipped for slaughter to any market under Government inspection. Dairy cows, so infected, may be isolated and bred, their calves being taken from them as soon as born.

"The destruction of tuberculosis-infected cattle has been the cause of greatest complaint against inspection," said Commissioner of Agriculture J. W. Newman. "Our rules provide that after a dairy cow has been proven to be infected her milk shall not be given or sold for human consumption, not even to the family of the owner. But, I would roughly guess, that there are in Kentucky 500 cows that cost $1,000 each. It is not necessary, if one of these is infected, for the owner to lose out entirely. The cow can be bred. Her calf need not necessarily have tuberculosis, if it is taken from her and given to another cow. So, while the public is protected, the owner is also given a chance to recoup."

Experts At Hand.

If anyone desires his cattle inspected an expert will be sent to inspect it without cost. If a municipal or county Board of Health desires dairy herds supplying milk to the city or county residents inspected, it will be done at the expense of the municipal or county board.

The rules adopted by the Livestock Sanitary Board are the most drastic Kentucky has ever had, and the rules have the force of laws with severe penalties attached for their violation.

No infected livestock may be imported, and after infected stock have used pens, crates, cars or stock yards cleansed and disinfected under the supervision of a State or Federal inspector must follow.

Carcasses of all animals dying of infectious or contagious diseases must be incinerated.

Hog cholera is under the ban. Animals infected cannot be moved along the highway, and when the disease breaks out in a herd the owner may have them inspected and ship the uninfected swine to market, but they must be hauled and not driven.

Serum Prohibited.

The use of hog cholera serum, moreover, is prohibited, excepting under State or Federal supervision, and then according to rules. The disease has been spread by a farmer inoculating his hogs and permitting the wash from the inoculated hogs flushing into streams that run through his neighbors' farms. Government statistics say that 34 per cent. of the disease is communicated by persons walking into pens where the swine are sick and carrying the germs on their shoes to some other place. Altogether 90 per cent. of the loss of hogs by disease is caused by cholera.

Glanders, catarrhal fever, distemper and anthrax are the scourges of horses, and rules are aimed at stopping the spread of these diseases.

Pleuro-pneumonia and anthrax attack cattle fatally. The instant death of the animal is required by the rules to save the other stock.

The Federal quarantine on Southern States against Texas tick is strengthened by a regulation requiring that stock shipped from that section be dipped beforehand and dipped again at the place of unloading under official supervision. Cattle infected with it are not to be shipped into Kentucky at all.

The State now has a veterinarian and assistants, and each county is required to have a livestock inspector.

LINCOLN COUNTY FIGHTING ILLITERACY

Lincoln county, which wrote a brilliant page in Kentucky's history through its representatives in the last General Assembly, Hon. Shelton M. Saufley, who championed the bill creating the Kentucky Illiteracy Commission, has written another. Superintendent Garland Singleton and forty-six of his teachers have volunteered to teach moonlight schools to wipe out illiteracy.

The Stanford Interior Journal and the people of Lincoln county are backing these volunteers enthusiastically.

MC CREARY HERE.

Gov. James B. McCreary arrived at Pikeville last Thursday night, remained here all day Friday, spoke to a large audience in the court room in the afternoon, and left for Jenkins and Whitesburg Saturday at noon, where he also addressed large crowds.

He received an enthusiastic greeting at Pikeville and the spacious court room was packed to overflowing to hear his address, which was prefaced by several selections from the Pikeville band and a short introductory speech by Judge J. M. Roberson.

By the courtesy of Mr. Guy Greer, Gov. McCreary had the pleasure of motoring around the city for an hour, after which he held a conference with several local leaders in regard to the situation in Pike.

Gov. McCreary and his secretary, Mr. Francis Douglass, were guests to five o'clock dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Hatcher on College-st. Friday.

In his speech here Gov. McCreary disavowed any hostility toward the temperance cause, and discussed at length the bills which he had recommended to the Legislature for better educational facilities, a better banking system, better roads, a better geographical survey, better protection for forests, a tuberculosis camp, etc. "I emphatically recommend all these measures in bills submitted to the Legislature," said he, "and I am glad to say all were enacted into law, for the advancement and betterment of the state of Kentucky."

RILEY RAMEY DEAD

Riley Ramey, an aged man, and for some years recognized as a feudist, died from the infirmities of age at his home at Elkhorn City last Friday. He had been in the hospital at Elkhorn City for several days before his death, but it was early understood by the physicians there that no hope could be held out for his recovery.

VACCINATION BECOMES SERIOUS.

H. H. Coleman, a merchant and timber dealer of German, Ky., near the mouth of Marrowbone, is a victim of a serious vaccination combined with typhoid fever. Mr. Coleman was inoculated in the left arm during the small-pox epidemic at Elkhorn City last winter, and the arm has never been well since the inoculation. Recently he also took typhoid fever, and so serious was his condition that two sons were called away from their work to attend at his bedside. One of these, Mr. Geo. W. Coleman, is a traveling salesman for Swift & Co. in this territory.

Mr. Coleman is now slightly better and may recover.

PIKE NEEDS BUILDING COMMISSION.

Pikeville is to-day a thriving mountain city, and is beginning to be recognized as a commercial center throughout Kentucky. Preparations are now on hand for an immense amount of building, and at present a number of residence and business houses are being erected, all of which will be added ornaments when they are completed; namely, the new public and high school building, the Williamson hotel, L. L. Stone's residence, the addition to J. S. Cline's residence, the "stone jug," and many others. But this fact should be taken note of: Other towns and cities have an organized Building Commission, the purpose of which is to regulate all building activities that nothing but acceptable structures will be erected within the city limits, and also to condemn all unsanitary and unsightly buildings, and compel their owners to either remodel or rebuild them, for the health, grace and dignity of the town. Fire risks would be less, comments from strangers would be more favorable, and there is not a doubt but that the volume of the city's business would be greatly increased.

FARM HOUSE BURNED

A farm house belonging to J. E. Yost on his farm on Raccoon creek was burned to the ground last Friday night. Mrs. Mary Carter and her family of children were occupying the house, but all escaped from the flames without injury. The origin of the fire is unknown and the damages will amount to about $500.

ALLEGHENY IMPROVING

The Allegheny Coke Co. at Heiler is preparing to build a number of steel coke bins for storage purposes to cost about $20,000. These are to be used as an equalizer between the mine output and shipments, as it frequently happens that the output exceeds the capacity of the 150 ovens now in use, or both exceed the market orders, and conversely. In this way the storage bins can be used to accommodate either the output or the demands of the market.

Owing to a stringency in the coal market, in nearly throughout the Elkhorn coal field are quiet, and while most of them are running, scarcely any are running full time. This is due to a dull period of the season, and later all mines will begin running at their capacity again. This will probably be when the winter orders for coal and coke are placed on the market.

GOV. WILSON SPOKE HERE.

Former Governor Augustus E. Wilson, of Louisville, addressed a large gathering in the court room at Pikeville last Monday in his own behalf as candidate for the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator from Kentucky. Mr. Wilson was introduced by attorney Roscoe Vanover, and his opening remarks were a statement of his reason for coming to Pikeville, saying he was not here to make a Willson speech so much as to make a Republican speech.

MISS SANDUSKY TO RETURN.

Miss Roberta A. Sandusky, of Lexington, formerly a teacher in Pikeville College, is expected to arrive tomorrow to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Auxier for several weeks. PICNICS.

Also, to add interest to the program, a ball game was played between two teams made up of the married and single men of the party. The picnic was a most interesting one.

The affection is situated at the base of the neck; but the effects of it have heretofore been so slight that no apprehensions were felt until recently, and the parents thought best to have it removed before it became serious.

LETCHER COUNTY AND WHITESBURG.

What is Happening in this Rich Coal Territory of Kentucky.

Whitesburg, Ky., July 29.—The Special Agricultural train which made a tour of this country last week was given great welcomes all along the Lexington & Eastern railroad, big crowds crowding gathered at Whitesburg, while Mayking, a country place five miles above here literally swarmed, over two hundred school children, and nearly three times as many others were out to greet the Farm Special and listen to the lectures. Good crowds, too, were on hand at Kona, Fleming and McRoberts. Fleming was covered, although it was not included in the itinerary. Wednesday night while part of the lectures stopped over in Fleming and spoke in the Y. M. C. A. others went over to Jenkins and part to Dunham where they lectured. D. D. Slade lectured on the culture of fruit, which should at length become a paying industry throughout the mountains, much of the mountain soil, it is said, being especially adapted to fruit growing. Much good will result from their trip through the mountains.

Gov. McCreary spoke in Jenkins Saturday night to a large interested audience, and left a splendid impression. His reasons why he should become a U. S. Senator are logical and reasonable and there is little doubt but that McCreary is rapidly gaining ground throughout the whole of the mountains. All along the L. & E. road Monday morning large crowds came to the different stations to see and shake hands with the Governor, and in Whitesburg, over 1000 people came from the different sections of the county to hear him. The demonstration and interest was unusual.

He was the first Governor that ever spoke in Whitesburg. From here the Governor returns direct to Frankfort.

A man named Caudill a few days ago stole a valuable horse belonging to Jas. M. Day a farmer near Whitesburg, and taking it across the country to Rockhouse he exchanged it for a mule.

Taking the mule on down toward Blackey officers pursued and Caudill was arrested. He was brought to jail here pending an examining trial.

It is expected that the contract for the construction of the new $30,000 high and graded school building will be let here within a few days. Mr. C. H. Burton one of the committee advisers us that a meeting for that purpose will be called at once. The lots that were laid off recently from the college property will also be put on the market.

John Collins came in contact with a live wire, carrying 2300 volts of electricity near the power tation at Hemphill the new industrial city on Yount's Fork in the coal fields, and he was so badly burned that death ensued Wednesday evening. Collins lived at Whitesburg, and was on his way to Rockhouse creek in this county, where the remains were taken Thursday for burial.

He was a member of one of the best families in Letcher county.

There is talk of organizing a County Fair Association in Letcher county this year. As a number of interested, progressive people are behind the movement it is believed a fair is assured. A county fair is a great thing to enthuse farmers on farming and its work.

The Letcher county Teachers' Institute convened here Monday of this week with Prof. George A. Clarke, of Hindman as instructor. All the teachers of the county are present and much interest is manifested. It will be one of the most important held here in years.

S. C. Tyree and County Court Clerk, R. B. Bentley were Lexington business visitors last week.

Bryce Cundiff Jackson traveling man has been calling on the merchants of Whitesburg.

D. A. Fletcher, Toledo, O., business man has been here for several days. He has an eye on the great coal and timber wealth of Eastern Kentucky, and will invest here.

PRESTONSBURG.

On account of the political influence in Pike county a great many of the schools are thrown back.

While Mr. Potter as superintendent in Pike county the County Board agreed to build 24 houses and issue warrants for same when received, but since then Mr. Campbell, who won in the contest for the Superintendency of this county refuses to do so and is therefore retarding the schools. There are a great many teachers who never yield to these discouragements.

Redford Speers is now conducting school under a large elm tree in front of one of these houses which has been locked on account of these political influences.

We believe the time has come when we should have a greater interest in the welfare of children than this.
